Output Engagement Which Brought Into Strong Light the Methods and Efficiency of the Russian and Japanese Armies.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENCE.]

HEADQUARTERS SECOND DIVISION, FIRST IMPERIAL JAPANESE ARMY, NEAR MOTIEN PASS, July 22.—[A. P. Correspondent.] When the whole history of this war is written the affair at Motien Ling on the 17th of July may have the proportions merely of an outpost engagement. But it brings into strong light the methods and the efficiency of the two armies at the present stage of hostilities and it especially emphasizes the advantage of the Japanese over the Russians in land on the Yalu of the East against one of the great military powers of Europe. Why the Russians should have abandoned the best defensive position between the Yalu and Liao Yang without a fight and soon afterward make two costly and unsuccessful efforts to regain it remains yet a mystery. Two days before this attack the Japanese knew through their remarkable intelligence service that it was planned. They foresaw how the Russians would act, though probably they did not anticipate how stubbornly the Russians, fired with ambition to maintain the prestige of European troops and inspired by the name of Skobelev linked with the memories of Skobipka Pass, would storm the stronghold. It was Skobipka fighting and Skobipka's men who taught the world the methods of a quarter century later.

On the morning of the 17th, several of the correspondents who were camped at the second general headquarters some miles from the pass, were awakened at daylight by the sound of distant volleys. A thick white fog covered the hills, like a London fog in winter, so dense that tents could not be seen a hundred yards away. The ground was muddy and trees dripped as though there had been a heavy rain. The correspondents were in their sleeping bags when word came from the press censor that they were not to go until given permission. Within an hour most of the militia, attached to the newspaper man had gathered in front of headquarters fretting to be unleashed. Delegates from each camp were laboring with the staff officers. Word came from within that the general was about to leave his quarters. "We were to 'wait a little,'" a phrase became familiar during two months of waiting in Tokio. Later the general made up his mind and the correspondents could accompany him.

The waiting was protracted until 9 o'clock and meantime could be seen the machinery of battle behind the lines. Several thousand battalions came up the road at a dog trot, the men's khaki tunics plastered to their backs with sweat while they mopped their faces with towels presented by their tripartite officers. Behind them blue prints of the Mikado's soldiers storming impossible blue precipices in the face of gigantic blue-bearded Russians. Most of the men had no gear for air except a foot-long team racing onto the field. There were no shirkers, although some followed the rear of their companies passing painfully under the fifty pound weight of equipment which they all carry. A hospital company marched past with the stretchers roped to the backs of horses and some of the Red Cross and horses and wooden stretchers to help soldiers with leg wounds from the field. Trains of small black Japanese stallions passed bearing ammunition boxes and supplies which were also destined for burying the dead. Ammunition carriages with lathering six-horsed teams rumbled over the road and two or three field batteries in reserve appeared and unlimbered on the hill where the marks of Russian tents remained, to await possible orders for the front. A company of engineers shoveling back roadsides and digging a trench which began to stretch a telephone line which extended across the fields as fast as the coils could be unwound. Probably no other army has an eight and a half month campaign with the same smoothness that it has exhibited from the day the mobilization began in Tokio.

The sounds of battle were increasing in volume and expectant witness became impatience. The guns began booming about that time and the explosion of a shell was heard every two or three minutes, while the unrelenting roar of machine gun fire louder, punctuated by frequent volleys and everyone knew that the volleys came from Russian rifles and that the Japanese were firing at will in accordance with their tactics.

Some fancied that the work was coming closer. It certainly sounded nearer than on the morning of the 4th, and the listeners began to speculate whether the Russians had carried the pass.

The Chinese were getting frightened and parties of women and children went scurrying up the hill roads with bundles and baggage.

About 6 o'clock the telephone bell in the staff office gave a long sharp ring and an officer emerged to announce that all might start. Word came that the Japanese were marching. Correspondents and officers were off at full speed, the cavalcade with the various uniforms of different nationalities making an unusual group.

The tall German captain found above all others wearing the cap of the same color and pattern as a Russian officer, which suggested the realization of the Japanese fear that foreigners on the battlefield might be by their own side. Just at the foot of the hill where the steep ascent of the pass came a squad of wounded soldiers going to the base hospital. Some had their arms in slings; others were bandaged across their faces. Most of them were very pale, showing loss of blood and heat, but all smiled and saluted. A long procession of wounded descended the hill. Part were carried on stretchers with their guns and equipments beside them, for nothing is more to be pitiful than a Japanese soldier with his gun. The wounded were off at full speed, the cavalcade with the various uniforms of different nationalities making an unusual group.

The Japanese for some reason refrained from making the most of their guns on this occasion. The Russians retreating in large compact bodies presented a picture of utter confusion and then might have thrown them into confusion, but after the retirement began the Japanese artillery was silent. The spectators with this army have yet to see engaged in impromptu field battles for all time, as at the crossing of the Yalu, has been shooting at distances and elevations previously known.

Between the methods of shooting of the two armies there was as great a contrast as in other essentials. Russian firing is almost all by volleys, with quite mechanical regularity. Even in the use of artillery they follow a plan of discharging one gun after another rapidly and with precision. To-day four Russian guns saluted the Japanese, and an hour later a column of the latter were moving into position before the Russian front. The manner of it was "one, two, three, four," again. Their infantry work is on the same order, three or four steps apart, then a pause. Occasionally the Japanese use volleys, but most of the time they fire at will, giving the enemy less information of their position and gaining the advantage of individual marksmanship. They look like hunters in the bush waiting for their game, and when they see it they blaze away.

"Boor tactics," their officers explain.

"For the Russians it is as though the front. The trench lies along a ridge between the hills and is not more than half a mile wide. In front of it is the slope where the daylight surprise of the 4th was fought, and the road winds down toward the left through a gradually widening valley of the 4th and was met with admiration for the valor of his men, and where he was probably a spectator of their second and more disastrous repulse. The advancing Japanese skirmish line had been at a distance of ten miles from the head of the valley, and the sun was shining hotly. The upward the two to battle that the Russians are much poorer marksmen than the Japanese, although the latter are not rated as high as certain other armies.

No one who has seen the campaign questions Russian bravery. The greatest strength of the Japanese lies in the hard work of the officers and men. The scene around the temple nears the pass with the correspondents arrived to the courage of the patient Slay. Through four terrible hours the Thirty-fourth European Regiment held their ground under a fierce fire from the Japanese, who doubtless above the temple consists of one-storyed gray brick buildings forming three sides of a square, with a brick wall in front. The compound is perhaps a hundred feet square, and looking in through the open gate, the Japanese are seen to have gold painted mud effigies of grotesque deities of war who by their spells kept back the Japanese from the Motien Ling ten years ago. This month their heads are cut off, and the Japanese struck down by Russian bullets. The Red Cross hangs in its gateway and the telegraph ticks on the right. To the right of the temple (facing the west) is a high wall which the Japanese had built around the compound, and which gradually ascending, stretches the right for half a mile or more at an angle, near the trenches, which are about 100 feet from the temple. The realment was a battery, which had fine opportunity for effective action, but was huddled together in the field, where the Japanese had driven them. The men were a long dark mass, blotting out across the fields and hill-sides in an almost solid barrier. Behind the firing line and sheltered by a clump of magnolia trees, which had come out from the Japanese advance, a regiment was stopping in solid formation on a cross road. FIRE IN BIG BASIN.

IN THE ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.]

SANTA CRUZ, Sept. 11.—Fire in the Big Basin is now well under control, and the Park is saved. On account of the false reports going out,

Park Commissioner H. F. Kron, who had just returned from Big Basin,

made the following statement:

"California Redwood Park is absolutely safe. Semperivir's and Government are doing their best to keep the park in order, and the heroic work of Warder Pilkington, with the able assistance of the local brothers and L. T. Bloom, at one moment, the danger of burning Government's Camp was over.

The clearing of dead brush and old timber last winter saved the fire in the camp.

It is only the east side of the park that has been affected, and the burned portion has not destroyed any of the redwoods, nor have fallen, but very few of the redwoods.

The next Legislature will give the Redwood Park an approppriate sum to all the commissioners to remove all the undergrowth

so that it can be kept for posterity for the extent of the burned distribution.

AT THE CITY'S GATES.

VERNON.

VERNON is aglow with excitement over the "recall" election next Friday. Citizens gathered early yesterday on the street corners and discussed the excitement. The so-called "Good Government League" is making all the noise possible to rush its candidate into office. The supporters of progress are working quietly and with determination, and the best citizens have come out strongly in their favor. When the Sixth Ward elected Mr. Davenport about 2000 votes cast, there were cast more than 1000 voters in the ward. The popular belief is that fair play claim for a majority will be supported by a handsome majority from those who by their refusal to sign the recall petition expressed their satisfaction with the incumbent.

Frank H. Roberts is having built a seven-room house at No. 1340 Harvard street, for a home.

Tracks have been laid from the old terminus at Evergreen Cemetery south to Fourth street, thence east to Euclid avenue, and south again to Stephen Avenue.

Buchanan is having built a home at No. 2221 Sheridan street.

EAST/LOS ANGELES.

Mrs. M. E. Adams entertained her third-grade class of the East Los Angeles Sunday-school at her home, No. 124 North Orange avenue, 24. San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange Counties.

[NEWS REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.]

ACCUSED OF A BRUTAL MURDER.

MUCH-WANTED MEXICAN CAUGHT AT SAN BERNARDINO.

Supposed to be the slayer of J. L. Rockhill, who was killed near Riverside—Was Pursued for Days by Sheriff's Posse—Prisoner's Bloody Record.

SAN BERNARDINO. Sept. 11.—Angel Pinia, whose criminal record reaches back a number of years, several times having come under suspicion of murder, was arrested here late last night, by Marshal Shay, charged with the murder of aged J. L. Rockhill near Riverside, last February. Pinia, who was the object of search by the officers of the entire State and Arizona, but though pursued at one time clear across Riverside county by a Sheriff's posse from here and Riverside had eluded capture, dropping out of sight at Palm Springs, in a most mysterious manner.

The man, who is Rockhill came as one of a series of shocking cases, which, though commenced with the fiendish wife-murder by young Fisher, who was subsequently hanged, Rockhill had worked in the community for twenty-seven years, and was well known as a hawker of groceries, and acquired considerable property. On the night of February 10, he was found murdered at his home, his head pounded to a pulp, and his body bearing no evidence of the murderer's work.

Robbery was the motive for the crime, as money and jewelry were missing, and the house had the appearance of having been thoroughly ransacked. Suspicion at once fastened upon a Mexican known in that community as Poloni Soto, who the day of the murder had worked for Rockhill. Soto was missing, and for him the search has been prosecuted.

Last yesterday afternoon, Ed. Hoskyns, foreman for Patten & Lett, attorneys at law, Bianchi, head where the murder occurred, was in the city, and happened to pass Pinia, whom he immediately recognized as the Mexican who worked for Rockhill. He is a member of the criminal Hoskyns immediately notified Marshal Shay, who after a long search in company with Policeman Seccome, succeeded in overhauling the Mexican and took him into custody. He confessed his innocence, stating that he had worked at Victoria, the time of the murder, and can prove an alibi.

Sheets Coburn of Riverside, notified and asked the Mexican to that city for further investigation, believing that he answers perfectly the description of the murderer. In 1890 Pinia had worked up in a Mexican miner in Rock Hill, and was captured and brought back for trial. Though officers are still reasonably certain that he was the murderer, he has been put into his own to a lack of evidence. Three years ago he assassinated Pan-telion Moreno, a relative, and attempted to kill Marshal Shay who arrested him. He was tried at the prison at the trial and again he escaped. Two years ago he took a shot at another Moreno, shooting a hole in his head, but again no one would testify to it. About two weeks ago he became involved at a Mexican dance and with knife and revolver attempted to clear out the police.

Hoskyns states that Pinia was employed to cut wood by Rockhill a few days before the latter was murdered, and that the two became involved in a dispute over the settlement of money due Rockhill, and the Mexican swore he would get even.

ROOSEVELT THEIR CHOICE.

D. C. Schiott of this city, who was a delegate to the Knights Templar conclave at San Francisco, while going north on the train, proposed a straw vote on the Presidency. There were twelve coaches, four being from Chicago and eight carrying Southern California delegates. The Westerners were willing, and the rest of the vote gave Roosevelt 156, Parker 38, Debs 1, Swallow 1 and Watson 1.

RIVERSIDE.

RIVERSIDE. Sept. 11.—The Republican County Central Committee met Saturday, with A. A. Adair acting as chairman pro tem. In the absence of C. O. Barker, and issued a call for a convention of the Second Supervisorial District to meet in the City Courtroom at 10 o'clock on Tuesday, the 27th inst., for the purpose of nominating a Supervisor from that district.

The basis of representation was made one delegate for each ten votes cast for Pardis in 1902, and on that basis the delegates were apportioned as follows: Riverside No. 6, 8; No. 7, 13; No. 8, 6; No. 10, 7; No. 11, 10, and West Riverside, 5. The primaries for the election of delegates will be held Monday, the 20th inst., at the general Republican convention held several months ago. It was supposed that the appointment of E. W. BANKS OF SANTA ANA RIVER TO BE STRENGTHENED.

Chambers of Commerce of Various Orange County Cities Urge Board of Supervisors to Take Immediate Action—Santa Ana House to be Remodeled to Secure Uniformity.

SANTA ANA. Sept. 11.—With the approach of the winter season agitation is again being commenced with reference to the matter of preventing possible overflows of the Santa Ana River. In past years when the rains have been heavy the water has frequently surged over the banks and done damage to neighboring property. The general expectation is that the coming winter will be marked by heavy downpours and should such prove to be the case the losses might be serious. The chamber of commerce has called a meeting to discuss the matter, and at a later meeting appointed a committee to confer with similar committees from the chambers at Santa Ana, Orange and Fullerton. It is expected that these committees will present a memorial to the Supervisors asking that necessary work on the river bed be done to keep within bounds the anticipated storm waters.

UNIFORMITY DESIRED.

The City Council at its meeting last night made provision for the renumbering where necessary of houses throughout the city. Many of the houses that have been built in the past year have been numbered by their owners, and the city has been asked to make uniformity adopted. CORONADO BEACH.

REMEMBERED THEIR DEAD.

MEMORIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.

TENT CITY—Coronado, Sept. 10.—With the comrades of the Southern California Veterans' Association the chief event of today was the holding of memorial services in honor of the members who have died since the last encampment. The services were held in the auditorium of the big hotel, which was filled with the veterans and their families. A similar service was held by the auxiliary of the association.

The veterans camp here was a pleasant affair. Captain Van Doren, who presided, introduced S. O. Wood of Los Angeles, who read a letter from William Koch, Jr., secretary to President Roosevelt, expressing the President's regret at not being able to attend the encampment and conveying his good wishes for the complete success of the gathering. Another interesting letter was from Mary C. Lawton, widow of Gen. Lawton, for whom the camp at Coronado this year was named. This was well accompanied by a picture of the general, the speaker included State Senator M. L. Ward of San Diego, Capt. A. F. Dil, Past Department Commander of the California G.A.R. Yesterday forenoon most of the veterans were in the ocean. An exhibition of fireworks was given in the early part of the evening. The camp will be officiated by the ladies to-morrow.
